PANEL DISCUSSION TOPICS WILL INCLUDE:

The Social and Economic Costs of Substance Use

Behavioral health and substance use disorders have devastating social and economic consequences for individuals, communities, and employers. Business leaders and policy makers will discuss the societal, health care, and business costs associated with substance use disorders and the importance of acting to address this challenge.

Working Together to Prevent and Treat Substance Use Disorders

Addressing the public health crisis Virginia and the nation faces from opioids and other substance use disorders will require stakeholders from education, law enforcement, health care, and business to work together to implement effective prevention and treatment strategies. Members from key stakeholder groups will discuss how they are working with employers to address substance use and behavioral health in the workplace.
